THE SF450EN CARBON MONOXIDE (CO) ALARM

The SF450EN CO alarm from Honeywell Analytics is the latest model from the UK's number one supplier of domestic CO alarms. It is officially approved and kitemarked to the latest European standard for domestic CO alarms (EN50291) and is also officially approved by CIPHE.

This unit has a range of superior features and benefits which include :

- Advanced Electrochemical sensing technology (also manufactured by Honeywell Analytics)
- Comprehensive 6 year guarantee (up to 6.5 year operational life)
- Maintenance free – no batteries, sensors or parts to replace and no running costs (batteries are sealed inside to avoid tampering or removal)
- Unique, distinctive alarm replicates the Morse code for "CO"
- Permanent operation – cannot be easily switched off
- Ultra compact and aesthetic design – believed to be the smallest approved CO alarm in the world
- Continuous self test function ensures reliable operation by constantly monitoring the health of the battery, sensor and circuitry.
- Variable installation options (wall, ceiling or free-standing)
- End of CO sensor life warning – an audible and visual warning is given when the unit comes to the end of its operational life (6.5 years).
